

Richard Meyer

No Sanctuary

This January sky blue as June doesn't move the sparrows.
They hunker down, little gargoyles braced against the wind, feather-puffed and patient, doing gray penance
in a snow-stuccoed hedge.